Apollo 9 Performing Flawlessly

SPAC CENTER, Houston (AP)

—The Apollo 9 astronauts, working calmly and quietly, flawlessly performed the first key maneuvers Monday in a flight that will put America on the moon's threshold or slam the door indefinitely.

Air Force Col. James A. McDivitt and David Scott and civilian astronaut Russell L. Schweickart unveiled for the first time the bug-like moon ship that is essential to America's drive for a lunar landing this summer.

Just before the crew called an end to the action-filled day, one of the astronauts told mission control they had been so busy "we kind of missed lunch."

"Roger, understand, you guys have really been at it," the controller replied.

Docking Routine

After thundering into orbit atop the mighty Saturn 5 rocket, the world's largest, the crew executed the complicated docking and extraction of the lunar landing spacecraft in almost routine fashion. Then they circled the earth with the lunar module and command module locked together.

The crew then fired up the powerful service propulsion engine to test the handling characteristics of the piggyback spacecraft, a maneuver necessary to a flight to the moon.

A signal from the ground sent the S4B booster stage out of sight and into a solar orbit while the three crewmen watched.

Only minor problems appeared with either of the machines, and mission controllers indicated there was nothing to indicate the flight wouldn't continue for its full 10 days.

Space Suits

The space pilots, tired from more than 12 hours of constant labor since they were awakened Monday morning at Cape Kennedy, took off their confining pressure space suits, ate their first space meal and then powered down the spacecraft for the night.

The crew was to sleep simultaneously throughout the mission, McDivitt and Scott on their couches and Schweickart in a sleeping bag-like arrangement under the couches.

The only excited comment of the day from the crew came when a signal from the ground lighted up the powerful rockets on the S4B and sent it out of sight toward the sun.

"It's on the way," Scott called as the huge rockets pushed the rocket hull away. "It's just like a bright star disappearing in the distance."

"Was there quite a bit of debris kicked out there, Apollo 9?" mission control asked.

"You could see a lot of stuff coming out when he just started up," said one of the crewmen, "but then it just went into a nice bright light."

"Beautiful," said a ground controller.

Minutes later, the ground announced shutdown of the rocket engine and McDivitt replied:

Distant Speak

"Roger, he's just a speck in the distance right now." Another ignition of the S4B engines later sent the rocket hull away from the earth and into an orbit of the sun.

The rocket reached a speed of more than a thousand miles a minute as it flashed away from the earth and out of contact with the ground controllers. It was more than 55,000 miles from earth when its engines cut off.

About three hours after their 11 a.m. EST launch from Cape Kennedy, the Apollo 9 crewmen deftly executed the difficult transposition and docking maneuver that was critical to the success of their flight.

Scott started the maneuvers by separating the command module from the booster, moving away 50 feet and then skillfully guiding the docking probe on the command module into a docking collar on the moonship, which was still secured to the booster.

Spring Ejections

"Everything came off just right," McDivitt reported.

Later, the command module and lunar module, locked together into a rigid structure, was spring-ejected from the S4B.

"We have made a successful ejection," said McDivitt calmly. "Sounds beautiful," answered the ground.

Scott started the intricate maneuvers by separating the command module from booster, moving away 50 minutes and then skillfully guiding the docking probe on the command module nose into a docking collar on the moonship.

"Everything came off just right," McDivitt reported.

Apollo 9, a complex 10-day mission which will put America on the threshold of a moon landing or slam the door indefinitely, was punctuated by the 36-story Saturn 5 rocket into orbit through a heavy cloud cover at the precise minute scheduled.

Ground controllers reported the orbit varied only slightly from the 119-mile circular orbit planned months before.

Job Demanding

The Apollo 9 crew's job is the most demanding ever shouldered by American spacemen. During the next four days they will test the lunar module, or LEM, a fragile, spider-like spacecraft designed to land men on the moon, but which has never before flown manned in space.

If tests by the Apollo 9 crew prove the craft's design, an American crew is to land on the moon in mid-summer. If LEM fails in its debut, America's goal of landing men on the moon in this decade could be set back for many months.

The launch was precisely as planned, with the huge first stage Saturn 5 engines igniting and screaming up to their full 7.5 million pounds of thrust as scheduled. The huge rocket was fettered to earth momentarily while the engines roared to full power, and then it slowly started to rise away from its launch pad, leaving a tail of fire twice its 363-foot length.

Crew Healthy

Liftoff came exactly at 11 a.m., the time of day planned months before, but three days later than expected. The launch was delayed from Friday, the originally scheduled date, when the crew contracted severe colds. Flight surgeons said Monday the crew was healthy and ready.

After the successful launch, American space experts said the success increased the chance America will beat the Russians to the moon's surface.

"I believe our chances of landing on the moon first are now substantially better," Dr. Werner von Braun, director of the Marshall Space Flight Center, said.

Budget and Finance Approves Allocations

In a four-hour budget balancing session on Saturday, ASUM budget and finance committee decided on allocations for the 1969-1970 year. The budget will be presented to Central Board for final approval.

Auxiliary sports was the only activity to receive a substantial budget increase — from $10,000 to $17,000. The committee voted to withdraw financial support from M Book and Model UN.

The committee passed a resolution removing the Miss U of M Pageant from the 1969-1970 budget and asking Central Board to study the pageant and make improvements. Raynee Schaffer said, "They almost have to scrape up girls to run." David Gorton added that there is a problem finding a director to run the affair.

The committee made the following allocations:

'Othello' Slated For Evening Performance

ASUM Program Council will sponsor a performance by the National Shakespeare Company, which will present its production of "Othello" in the University Theater tomorrow at 8:15 p.m.

The production features Clark Morgan as Othello. Morgan had a feature role in the Broadway production of "The Great White Hope" and appeared in the movie, "For Love of Ivy."

Tickets for the single performance are on sale at the University Information desk, the music school and the Cartwheel.

Store Board Gives Nod To Student Loan Idea

ASUM Bookstore Board last night informally approved a suggestion that students seek a $15,000 loan from the Store Board fund to increase the store's inventory.

The suggestion was made by UM senior Byron Baker, who said he represents an informal group of students desiring more trade books, records, and stock other than text books be available at the store.

Baker said he plans to work through Central Board to obtain student backing for the proposal. Store Board members agreed that student backing would greatly strengthen the chances of acquiring the loan.

Morris McCollum, bookstore manager, said the loan would enable the store to increase goods and services, but emphasized that an increase in inventory has already been planned, and, if students could not obtain a loan from the Store Board fund, the store would apply for a bank loan to increase stock.

Mr. McCollum noted that the bookstore is considering the establishment of five or ten cent cash-cashing fee, but added that a loan might enable the store to continue cashing checks for students free of charge.

UM Jubileers Will Present Tour Preview

The UM Jubileers, directed by Joseph Musselman, will present a preview of their 1969 tour program tonight at 8:15 in the UM Music Recital Hall.

The program will be presented in ten Canadian cities during a 5000-mile spring vacation tour. As a preview, the group will sing parts of the program prepared for servicemen in the Northeast Command which they will visit in April and May.

The $1 admission charge will help finance the two-and-a-half weeks the Jubileers will spend in Europe before returning June 10.

Alumnus Deplores Shocking Degradation

To the Kaimin:

Good golly! Haven't we God-fearing, tax-paying UM alums already suffered enough heartbreak and embarrassment at the hands of a seemingly endless series of fetid, jerk-off, Kaimin editors, syllabified-splintered English instructors, fine-arts faggots, commie-finkass administrators, candy-clitted campus whores, liberal-arts-oriented Yentah bitches and assorted nigger-jew-hippie hell-rakes? Must we now, in addition, be witness to the moral disintegration of that last, once-brave bulwark of decency and discipline at UM—the ROTC program?

It was with very hot tears (straight from the bottom of my stomach) that I responded to retired ROTC Col. Keith Angwin's betrayal of Right and Good, as reflected in several of his recent public statements. I am shocked, for example to see him advocate the "four-letter untasteful words" on restroom walls and horrified to hear that he "condoned" the placing of last Spring's tent camp—a veritable sin city—right on the oval, rather than on remote, out-of-sight Dornblaser, the administration's choice. Apparently even this once-vallant soul—a man many of us took warmly to our bosoms as our own personal Captain America—has gone under, so to speak, in what I understand is—on the UM campus —an ever-expanding sea of corruption and lust, of unbathed, unclothed and uncouth bodies, of "reefer" butts, used condoms, soiled bras, torn jocks, filthy "art," wantonly deposited feces and other things which decency prevents me from mentioning in an open letter. (Those desiring further details can contact me individually, enclosing stamped, self-addressed envelope and $1.50 for handling charges.)

But even more disheartening than Col. Angwin's fall was news—in the Feb. 20 Kaimin—that the previously upright, All-Man ROTC program is now being undermined by the presence of several coeds. That this is a commie plot designed to seduce and debrief our fine young men in ROTC uniform, leaving them barren not only of their priceless chastity but of their vital military secrets as well, cannot be doubted. The shocking order to which these men are being subjected is indicated by their initial reaction to the presence of the bare-legged alien intruders. In a poignant report smuggled off campus, one observer described the young men's travail thus: "Some blushed, while others stared straight ahead and chewed their gun recklessly."

Dear God, when will all this end?

Penitent Suggests Signal Expenditure

To the Kaimin:

And to the Chief of Plant Security:

Please use the $20.00 fine I paid to purchase two signs stating that driving is prohibited on the service roads. These signs might be placed at the ends of the service road south of Miller Hall, i.e., the road between the northwest corner of Elrod parking lot and Arthur Avenue.

Trailing by five points at half-time, the Montana Grizzlies edged in the second half to defeat Idaho State 78-67 at the Field House last night to finish a rebuilding season.

The victory gave the Grizzlies, who lost to Weber State Friday and Saturday, a 9-17 record under first-year coach Bob Cope.

As usual, Harold Ross sparked the Montana attack, scoring 18 points in the second half. Ross' 26-point total placed him third on Grizzly all-time single season scoring list with 479 points. The only player ahead of him on the list is Cope, who scored 701 points in 1949-50 and 509 points in 1947-48.

UM hit only 26.5 per cent of its shots the first half, but made all 15 free throws to stay in the game.

A Ross jumper tied the score at 48-48 with 13:37 left. The lead bounced back and forth until Montana reeled off eight straight points and then began to slow the game down.

Sophomore Lane Broyles, Idaho State's 6-5 forward, paced all scorers with 30 points, many coming on driving lay-ins.

After the game, Moore was named most valuable senior and received the Dragstedt Award, and junior Dave Gustafson was presented the Eaheart Award for outstanding defensive play.

Football awards also were presented by the UM coaches. Senior Jim Kelly was elected honorary captain of the 1968 Grizzlies.

All-conference defensive end Herb White received the Golden Helmet Award, and junior tailback Mike Buzzard won the Terry Dillon Award as the outstanding back.

Tackle Tuufuli Uperesa was named outstanding lineman.

On Saturday the Weber squad, 24-2 on the season, staged another demonstration of championship basketball, easily dumping Montana 95-77 at the Adams Field House.

Balanced scoring helped the Wildcats cause as four players hit in double figures, led by flashy playmaker Justus Thigpen, who had 21 points. Sophomore center Willie Sojourner had 18 points.

Sophomore Don Wetzel, the leading scorer on the freshman team last season who has sat on the bench much of the season, led the Grizzlies with 21 points. Harold Ross added 20.

UM took a 2-0 lead but eight straight Weber points gave the Wildcats a lead they never relinquished.

Montana threatened early in the second half, trailing 51-43 with 16:09 left, but once again the Wildcats fought off the challenge with their own offensive rally to put the game out of reach.

FAILURE

You'll never get anywhere without it.

Nothing helps a young engineer's career like being given a challenge. Which is another way of saying a chance to fail now and then. To make his own mistakes.

At Western Electric we give our newly recruited engineers responsibility almost immediately. They make their own decisions. Learn from their own errors.

Don't get us wrong. We keep our demands reasonable enough so that our recruits can make their decisions at their own pace. But our thinking is, a man feels awfully good about even a small decision when it's his.

If you're the type who'd like the chance to make your own moves, see our recruiter or write College Relations, 222 Broadway, New York, N. Y. 10038.

A lot of hard work never hurt anyone.

Students to Solicit Funds for Costs In Hoffman Trial

Friends of Gary L. Hoffman, who faces trial for possession of marijuana, will solicit funds for his lawyer fees today from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. in the mall of the UC, according to the Rev. Jon Nelson, Lutheran campus pastor.

Rev. Nelson called the court costs "a special burden for Hoffman's parents, who do not have great financial means at their command for his defense."

Hoffman, who was arrested in connection with an alleged "pot party" in Aber Hall Jan. 16, pleaded not guilty in District Court Feb. 27. His trial has been set for the first week in April.
